

Canvas hatch cover for Catalina 22

Most used item I ever made for my sailboat. A canvas cover to cover only the companionway with weighted batten-boards to keep the cover tight in the down position and added strength from the wind and water in the lateral position. Easy to enter the cabin, and easy to drop over the opening when needed. Easy to roll into a coil for ease of storage when not in use.

When the weather looks like possible rain.

When spending a night onboard.

When away from the boat for a period of time.

Protection from UV on hatch trim and boards when not using the boat.

Added protection from weather and bee's when boat is stored for extended periods of time.
